WHY DON'T THE GIRLS PROFOSE?—
Our young cotemporaries, Taney and Russell, in the columns of their respective journals call loudly upon the public to witness that they are solitary bachelors, have no use for that parlor set, don't want it, and couldn't be prevailed upon to rob us of it; and while the boys are thus seeking sympathy by their overwhelming generosity, accommodating friends are quietly passing the hat around in their behalf. In the meanwhile, as we don't want to take advantage of the boys, we would suggest that with the prospect of winning an elegant parlor set before them they should experience no difficulty in choosing partners. Here is a chance for a couple of ambitious maidens who recognize the virtues of leap year. WHY DON'T THE GIRLS PROPOSE?
